Inspectors to Determine Who Com-Messrs. Charles W. Wright and Edwin F.

White, chief inspectors of hulls and boilers of steam vessels for this district, were in the city yesterday and held a quiet investigation aboard the District fireboat, lying at her wharf near the Washington and Alexandria ferry pier. Exactly what the investigation was about was not given out, but it is understood it was for the perpose of settling a dispute that has tisen as to who was in command of the steamer, the marine pilot or the fire department captain.

According to the rumors the marine men thought that as long as their names appeared on the papers of the steamer they should command her, but the firetighters thought differently, and the steambout inspectors have been called upon to determine where the authority of the man holding license begins and ends. The decision of the inspectors will be awared with much interest not only interest not called the steamer that the decision of the inspectors will be awared with much interest, not only in the fire depart-ment but among the steambout men as Three-Masted Schooner Overdue.

The three-masted ram schooner Annie M. Hudson, which sailed from Charleston for New York with a cargo of lumber abeard, is long overdue and much anxiety is felt for her safety. The schooner left Charleston early in the month, and should, under ordinary circumstances, have made the trip in about ten days or two weeks. Twice that time has elapsed, and no tidings have been had of her since she left Charleston
